

Summary

I am a full-stack web developer with over 7 years of web design and development experience in an agency setting. My focus is building websites and applications that render and function flawlessly on any device using clean, standards-based code and the industry's best practices. I enjoy experimenting with new web technologies and thrive in a team environment where knowledge can be transferred. I am seeking a position that will provide me with opportunities and challenges to expand my development skills and take pride in the code that I contribute.
